MINER IS KILLED DURING A QUARREL

Slaying Occurs At Midland No. 1. Near Houston, On Saturday Night — Dead Man Is 54, Alleged Murderer Is 45 Years Old

IS BLAMED ON "HOOTCH"

Men Involved Had Not Been Enemies. And Had Purchased A Bottle of Liquor. "Dutch Treat"—Commenced to Quarrel After Drinking Potions

Close on the heels of the murder at Arden in which Susie Jackson Brown Freeman, aged 27, fatally stabbed Louis Freeman, aged 40, another colored slaying occurred at Midland No. 1, near Houston, Saturday night, John Settles, aged 45, shooting and killing James Patmon, aged 54, a miner, during a drunken quarrel.

Making her escape after the stabbing affray in the home of George Shivers of Arden, Susie Freeman eluded the officers who were searching for her until yesterday morning, when Haven Mince, residing near the County Home, notified Chief County Detective William B. Dinsmore that a colored woman was walking through the fields in the direction of Arden.

Chief Detective Dinsmore and County Detective D. W. Creigh hurried to the scene and after searching through a woodland finally located her. She said after the killing she went to Arden, took a street car to Houston, went to Midland No. 1, hid in a small woods there during Saturday and then went to a colored family where she was allowed to sleep. Yesterday morning she was returning to Arden but was afraid to go to the town in daylight.

She was born in Alabama and married "Powder Jack" Brown a gambler. They resided in various parts of Western Pennsylvania. She left him and then went to Arden with Freeman last March 4. She said Freeman had been drinking and abusing her. She left Friday and went to Houston, where she spent the night Saturday morning she returned to Arden. Her quarrel with Freeman occurred at the Shivers home.

The killing at Midland seems to have been entirely due to "hootch." Settles and Patmon had not been enemies and had purchased a bottle of liquor, "Dutch treat." They commenced to quarrel after drinking half the bottle and got into a fight. Patmon tried to stab Settles, inflicting a wound in his chest. Settles then pulled a revolver and fired two bullets into Patmon's body, one striking him in the right arm and the other in the chest. The bullet apparently passed through his lung from the right to the left side.

Chief County Detective William B. Dinsmore and County Detective Creigh hurried to the scene. Constable Ben Rathbone had also been summoned and was conducting an

BUCHANAN BOYS SAVE THE HOME OF THEIR MOTHER

The Charleroi fire department rescuing the home of Mrs. Mary Frances Buchanan, who recently moved there, Saturday afternoon at 3:30, and extinguished flames that resulted from an explosion of gas in a rear room of the cellar.

The explosion occurred when gas escaping from a pipe that had not been properly closed after a stove had been disconnected filled the small cellar room and reaching the kitchenette above became ignited from a light. The quick work of Frank and "Jim" Buchanan, sons of the lady, who were in the home at the time, saved the house probably from complete destruction. A fire alarm was immediately sent in and the firemen quickly squelched the flames. The damage was small.

Alleged That James Murray, Ex-Political Boss, Is a Member of Gang of Train Robbers Looting C. M. & St. Paul Train

TRY TO CONCEAL IDENTITY

Frenzied Efforts Made to Get Writs of Habeas Corpus—Is Accused of Being Head of the Chicago "Beer Ring"—With Prohibition His Wealth Booms

Chicago, June 13.—James Murray, former political boss, must stand trial as being a member of the bandit gang which held up a Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul train, taking $3,000,000 in cash and securities.

The former politician accused of being head of the Chicago "beer ring" was one of the four men captured in a raid by detectives Saturday. In the raid J. H. Wayne, suffering from wounds received in the hold-up, was captured and later confessed to participating in the spectacular mail holdup.

Murray gave the name of James Mahoney when arrested but later was identified by police as the politician whose activities have long been under surveillance. A federal warrant has been issued for him in connection with the holdup.

Excitement prevailed about police headquarters when it became known that "Jimmy" Murray was being held. Heading the beer ring he was looked upon as an underworld king, and when word that he was arrested reached the Chicago crime circles immediate attempts were made to free him. Frenzied efforts were made to get writs of habeas corpus so that his identity would not be made public.

Besides the confession of Wayne, the police and federal authorities are now checking up stories told by various persons held. James H. Watson, former Oklahoma aviator, had twenty $1,000 bills in his possession. The money taints with that taken from the holdup.

Mrs. Catherine McComb, wife of Walter McComb, who is held in connection with the holdup, told of her knowledge of the affair, which led to the arrest of three more men, bringing the total under arrest to seven. Detectives said they know the other three members of the bandit band and will bring about their arrest in short time. They also expect to recover a large amount of the loot.

Federal warrants have been obtained for all of the men prisoners now held.

Murray began his career under the leadership of Alderman John Powers in the famous bloody Nineteenth ward. He soon arose to Chief of the Ward and soon became known to the police because of intercession for crooks. With prohibition Murray's wealth boomed.

Charleroi Wins Saturday And Goes Down to Defeat Before Wheeling Bauers

Pulling the unexpected, the Charleroi team defeated the crack Sackville Stogies of Wheeling here Saturday in a thrilling contest by a score of 5-4. The game was witnessed by a good-sized crowd, the contest being so close as to hold the local fans on the anxious seat during the interval of the game.

Manager D. Cleve Mathers trotted out a new pitcher by the name of Reilly, a student at Duquesne University. Reilly proved that he is "some pitcher." He has an under-throw which to throw his spitter; this delivery called forth protest on the part of the manager of the Stogies early in the game, and the contest was delayed for about 20 minutes while the gentleman argued the matter with the umpire. But nothing came of the argument, and the game proceeded.

The first pitcher for the Stogies was wild, and after making a wild throw, he was taken out and another flinger put in. Reilly was good all through the contest, and got better as the game proceeded. The feature of the game aside from his pitching, was the base-running of Consonery, who, for some reason or other, got it in his head that the visitors' catcher couldn't throw, and his reasoning was sound, as Consonery stole second base thrice, third once, and had home purloined but for the fact that the batter flew to left field for the third out.

In an interesting game at Wheeling, West Virginia, yesterday, featured by the pitching of Noel for the Bauers, and Beatty, for Charleroi, and the batting of Charlie Davis for the Charleroi club, he getting three hits, one of which was a home run, and the other two a double and a single, the Bauers defeated Charleroi by a score of 4-2.

The score was deadlocked for seven innings, the Bauers scoring a couple in the eighth and winning out.

Beatty was in good form and pitched a strong game, but Noel was a little bit better. Beatty allowed eight hits, and Noel six. Three of the six hits were made by Davis. Noel struck out seven men, and Beatty four. Beatty evidenced that he has returned to form, and still can pitch good ball. Davis' hitting is to be complimented, as much as Charlie has seemingly not had his eye on the ball on the local lot in the last few games.

On Wednesday afternoon, with probably Abe Martin pitching for the visitors, will come the Consumers to Charleroi. The clubs have met this season in a tie game, so this struggle of Wednesday promises to be interesting.

FOR THE SAFETY OF THE PUBLIC

June 1 to September 30, 1924 —Object Is To Bring Before American Public Necessity of Exercising Care At Railroad Crossings

976 CROSSING ACCIDENTS

15,000,000 Autos Were Licensed Last Year—A Check on Drivers Shows 97 Percent, or 14,550,000 Cars Were Driven With Reasonable Care

Last summer from June to September the railroads of the United States participated in a Careful Crossing Campaign. The object of this campaign was to bring to the attention of the American public, through publicity of various kinds, the necessity for exercising the greatest possible care to avoid being struck and killed or injured by trains while traveling over highway crossings. The slogan was CROSS CROSSINGS CAUTIOUSLY and there is no doubt the warnings given saved many lives.

There were, nevertheless, 976 crossing accidents resulting in 120 fatalities and 180 injuries on the Pennsylvania Railroad system alone during the four months of the campaign, nine-tenths of these accidents involving automobiles. A check of more than 100,000 cars at railroad crossings developed that the vast majority of drivers, approximately 97 per cent, are reasonably careful, and that the large number of deaths and injuries in automobile accidents on streets and highways and particularly at railroad crossings are attributable to gross carelessness—in many instances criminal carelessness—on the part of the other 3 per cent. The nature of this carelessness is shown by an analysis of the crossing accidents during the Careful Crossing Campaign, which should be of interest to those who own, drive or ride in automobiles.

Passenger and Freight Trains. Approximately one-half of the accidents involved passenger trains and the other half freight trains and shifting engines. Sixty percent of the trains in these accidents were running less than 20 miles an hour, indicating that the failure of motorists to keep a constant lookout ahead and their cars under control is a greater factor in crossing accidents than the speed of the trains. Tests have established that an automobile equipped with effective brakes, running 20 miles per hour, can be stopped within 25 feet. A train cannot be stopped in a few feet—an automobile can, and therefore it is obvious that when drivers are approaching railroad crossings they should have their cars under absolute control.

Pleasure Cars, Busses and Trucks. Pleasure automobiles were in 611 of these accidents, resulting in 79 fatalities and 107 injuries; motor busses were in 10 accidents resulting in 3 fatalities and 5 injuries, and motor trucks were in 187 accidents resulting in 10 fatalities and 31 injuries. The laws in a number of states require motor busses to stop before crossing railroad tracks, which possibly explains why there was not a greater number of accidents to busses. The efficacy of this simple precautionary measure is becoming more and more appreciated by the fact that five states already have stop laws.

It is significant that 23 percent of the automobile accidents involved trucks, causing 11 percent of the fatalities and 22 percent of the injuries, although motor trucks represent only 11 percent of all automobiles in use. The responsibility of a motor truck driver from a safety standpoint is equivalent to the responsibility of a locomotive engineer, but it is doubtful if the general public, including the owners of motor trucks, fully appreciate that fact. The weight of a loaded motor truck will generally range from 2 to 10 tons, making it impossible to operate with safety unless they are maintained in good condition and driven by a well qualified driver.

Racing Trains Over Crossings. Nine fatalities and 12 injuries were due to the drivers attempting to beat trains over crossings. The foolhardiness of this practice is so obvious it seems strange anyone who could qualify for an automobile license would have so little discretion as to indulge in this practice. The frequent recurrence of the statement made by drivers who have escaped fatal injuries in a crossing accident to the effect that "I thought I could make it ahead of the train," impresses those who come in contact with these matters that there is a complete lack of judgment on the part of some automobilists. An editorial writer has very aptly illustrated the futility of drivers racing with death by quoting an anecdote. In this story the motorist said to his companion, "Don't be afraid, old man, I can beat that train to the crossing." Whereupon his friend is said to have replied feelingly, "I don't care whether you beat the train to the crossing or the train beats you, but I don't want the race to be a tie." It is a safe wager those who have started out for a ride or trip that have terminated in a fatal accident never contemplated or imagined they were in the slightest danger—thoughtlessness and lack of care on the part of the driver was generally the answer.

Automobiles Demolished. From the standpoint of property loss it is impressive to note that during the four months' period 158 automobiles were either badly damaged or demolished, representing a large monetary waste. Fortunately in about half these cases the occupants of the automobiles jumped before their cars Crossing Bells. The record of accidents at highway crossings discloses no fact more incredible than the figures showing 20 fatalities and 17 injuries at crossings where warning bells were ringing at the time the automobiles were driven in front of the trains.

Watchmen's Warning Disregarded. As if to show the fullest extent to which negligence can be carried, 58 drivers disregarded the warning or signal of crossing watchmen to stop, with the result that 9 persons were killed and 15 were injured from this cause. It is common knowledge that when either of these two forms of signal warnings are given trains are approaching the crossing and it is no exaggeration to say that recklessness of the character described is of a criminal nature.

Trains Derailed. One feature of the crossing accident, deserves the close attention of the large number of persons who travel on passenger trains and that is the liability of their serious injury or death as a result of train derailment due to crossing accidents. There were 5 train derailments on the Pennsylvania Railroad System from crossing accidents in the four months' period. As an illustration of this hazard, sometime ago an automobile truck moving over a railroad crossing ran off the crossing planks and stalled between the rails of a high speed track. Before it could be moved it was struck by a passenger train running 60 miles per hour, derailed the locomotive and several cars. Sixteen minutes before this accident the same automobile collided with a towing car for which the driver was afterwards arrested and fined. It developed the driver had been drinking prior to the accident.

Defective Automobile Brakes. The record shows 37 crossing accidents attributable to defective automobile brakes and it is probable that in many other instances this was the cause, but due to the automobile being demolished it was impossible to ascertain the condition of the brakes. For the present purpose, however, it suffices to say that it is imperative to have effective brakes on every automobile that travels on the highway, and that the public authorities should see this requirement is fulfilled.

The brakes on locomotives, passenger cars and even freight cars are thoroughly inspected every time they move from one terminal to another, but the brakes on many automobiles and trucks, which run at high speed on the streets and highways, are rarely, if ever, inspected, and it is possible that a systematic check to detect defective foot and emergency brakes would disclose a startling condition. A firm of Safety Engineers examined 400 cars for their clients and found 52 per cent of them with either defective brakes or defective steering gear. During January, 1923, the Police Department of New York City made an inspection of approximately 1,000 cars and found 800 with defective brakes. In 112 of these cases both brakes were inoperative and the drivers were arrested and convicted.

Intoxication. Sixteen accidents during the four months' period resulting in 3 fatalities and 4 injuries, were attributable to intoxicated drivers. There were probably other cases due to this cause not detected on account of the drivers being killed, but the record as it stands is a clear indication, if any were needed, that intoxicated automobile drivers are a serious menace to safety. The news reports throughout the country of the sentencing to jail of persons who have killed, maimed or injured persons while driving under the influence of drink. Stalling on Tracks and Intoxicated Drivers. Only 10 accidents are classed under "lack of experience of auto drivers," but it is believed the difficulty in specifically developing this information renders the figures incomplete; the records show 75 accidents resulting in 4 deaths and 15 injuries due to "automobiles stalling on tracks," an occurrence most likely to happen with inexperienced drivers.

Information regarding inability to drive safely due to lack of experience or for other reasons, is very indefinite, yet it is generally believed a great many automobiles are driven by persons who are not capable of operating them with a reasonable degree of safety.

Running Through Crossing Gates. There were 320 cases of automobiles running through or into crossing gates, but not into trains. These accidents are directly attributable to failure to exercise ordinary precaution, as a crossing gate is generally visible for a long distance.

Autos Ran Into Side of Train. If further data were required to demonstrate that nearly every automobile accident at a highway crossing is attributable to lack of care on the part of the driver, the fact that in 4 months, 120 automobiles ran into the side of trains would be sufficient. These 120 accidents resulted in 10 deaths and 37 injuries, and in many instances the automobiles came in contact with the train some time after the head of the train has passed the crossing. A case is reported on another road of an automobile running into the caboose of a long freight train. When an automobile runs into the side of a train it is usually a case of excessive speed or defective brakes and perhaps in some cases lack of experience in driving.

Remedies. There are more than 12,000 highway crossings on the Pennsylvania Railroad and over 250,000 in the United States. The railroad has and will continue to spend all the money that can be spared for their elimination. However, it is estimated it would cost over a billion dollars, to eliminate grade crossings on the Pennsylvania Railroad and nineteen billion dollars to remove all crossings in the country. These figures are of such magnitude it can readily be understood the elimination of all crossings in the near future is financially impossible, to say nothing of the physical impossibility of doing so.

It is therefore important for the general public, who, on the whole, are reasonably careful, to bear in mind that the most effective remedy for preventing automobile accidents of all kinds, is not the elimination of highway crossings and improving conditions generally on the highways as important as that may be, but the elimination of the reckless drivers who make up a very small percentage of the total and who are responsible for nearly all the accidents. To accomplish this, all reasonable steps should be taken to solicit the assistance of town, city, county and state authorities, and to develop a public opinion that will demand safe and sane automobile driving.

Reasonable regulations and the observance of all the precautions necessary for the protection of life and limb will work no hardship upon 97 per cent of the drivers of automobiles, and for their own protection they should lend their influence in combating the menace of reckless driving, not only at highway crossings, but wherever automobiles are driven.

Reference has been made to the very small portion of motorists—3 per cent—who are responsible for nearly all the automobile accidents at railroad crossings, but do not let them mislead you into the belief that the total of those who are deliberately reckless in their driving is small; as a matter of fact, the total number of automobile drivers classified as careless is quite formidable when we take into consideration that 15,000,000 automobiles were licensed last year throughout the country, 3 per cent of which produces the large figure of 450,000 cars probably driven carelessly. It is therefore obvious that the task of eliminating recklessness is one of considerable magnitude.

The Careful Crossing Campaign, conducted by the railroads last summer accomplished good results toward the awakening of the public to the dangers of careless driving at grade crossings, the press and various commercial agencies and individuals gave their hearty support to the movement.

The railroads are conducting another Careful Crossing Campaign during the present summer, and the American Railway Association, the agency through which the campaign will be directed, appeals to the owners and drivers of automobiles to cooperate and assist in reducing the large annual, yet needless, loss of life and injury to automobilists at highway crossings by—

- 1.—Slowing down when approaching any railroad-highway crossing.
 - 2.—By looking both ways and listening to ascertain if a train is approaching.
 - 3.—By being particularly careful where there are two or more tracks, because of trains in opposite direction.
 - 4.—By exercising good, conservative judgment at crossings.
 - 5.—In case of doubt take the safe course and stop before reaching track.
- By so doing you may save your own life and the lives of those riding with you.
- The foregoing facts are given to impress you with the necessity, not only during the railroads' campaign, but on all occasions to CROSS CROSSINGS CAUTIOUSLY.

JEWISH POGROM IN BERLIN

The looting of Jewish shops and the lynching and mistreatment of Jews in the Berlin Jewish quarter, created a stir of indignation all over the civilized world. Photo shows a scene of rioting in the Jewish quarter after the police had taken a hand.

New Mexico Boasts Four Stages of Civilization

Four stages of civilization have existed in New Mexico. The present of American; back of this the Spanish, which came with the Spaniards in 1540. When they came they found the civilization of the Pueblo Indian, with at least seventy villages, cultivated fields and extensive irrigation. Co-existent with them were a prehistoric race, living in well-built cities, with houses of stone, some of them four stories high, and they were cultivating irrigated fields. Their ditches and irrigated works were as well laid out as if run by modern engineers. They have entirely disappeared and we know only that they were here for an unknown period, beginning at least 1,000 years ago.

All that remains are the mighty ruins, some are in cities down on the plains and others are cliff dwellings, where houses are built on the cliffs, and some were cave dwellings. One building at Pueblo Bonito, which is one of the earliest apartment houses, had four stories and covered a greater area than the capitol at Washington.

Today, remarks Adventure magazine, the traveler can see at one time the nomadic Indian, the pueblo dweller, the Spanish occupation and the present Anglo-American development.

Middle Ages Heroine Had Practical Mind

One of several fortresses formerly owned by Lord Castletown's ancestors is Morett castle, now a ruin, but at one time a place of immense strength. Concerning this his lordship tells a grim story in his book, "Ego." The castle was besieged by the Irish, and the garrison was taken captive. A sortie. He was brought up by his captors outside the walls and a parley demanded. His wife came on the battlements, and the enemy herald announced that unless the fortress was surrendered within an hour her husband would be hanged. "Give me time to think it over," requested the lady. "One hour," said the Irish. "One hour will do," replied the lady. At the appointed time both sides returned, the lady on the battlements, the prisoner with a cord round his neck and surrounded by his guard. "I have decided," she said. "I can always get another husband, but never another Morett. You can hang your prisoner." Which they promptly did.

First Divorce Court

The first divorce court in England was instituted in 1553. The court consisted of three judges. At the first sitting five marriages were dissolved, and in the first year of the court's operation 38 divorces were granted out of 299 petitions. From the time of the Reformation up to 1858 there had been but 317 divorces in England, granted by acts of parliament. Until the passing of the divorce act in 1858 the theory in English law regarding divorce was the same as that of the Roman Catholic church, although in practice this rule was not strictly adhered to, and wealthy and influential persons, through parliament, secured freedom from galling ties. The divorce act provided that the wronged husband could be released from his obligation to an unfaithful wife, but gave no such recourse to an injured wife, unless the husband's offense in this direction was aggravated by other offenses.

Forethought

The small boy entered the shoemaker's shop, and, unwrapping a small parcel, produced a size 11 shoe, very much the worse for wear.

The shoemaker took it from him, and, after looking at it, asked:

"Well, what do you want me to do with this? It doesn't want mending, does it?"

"Yes," said the boy: "that's father's slipper, and there's a nail sticking up in it. I want you to put it right before he notices it."

"You're a kind little boy," said the old man, beaming. "You must be fond of your father."

"That's that quite," replied the small boy calmly. "You see, the nail's sticking right through the sole, and this is the slipper father spansk me with."

Tracing Surnames

Surnames offer a most convenient method of recalling forgotten trades. Who would guess that Thacker or Thackeray was the man who thatched the roof with straw; that Tyler was the one who tiled it, or Slater, he who roofed with slate? A few other names as Collier, the charcoal burner, Chandler, the candle maker, and Fuller, the cloth cleaner, will show how numerous were the ancient crafts. Blacksmith has no equivalent among English names, unless it be the abbreviated Smith, though in German there is Klingsmith, the "clanging smith." But the horseshoer was a farrier, dropped in our dictionaries but retained in the directories.

Our Wills

Our wills are queer things. They are like plaster of paris; for after they have been melted into liquid form they tend to "set." They do thus preserve the contour of that about which they have been molded. If it is a good cast, well enough; we make a cast for a permanent possession. Here it is—fixed and final! Is the lethargy of a standard pattern, no matter how excellent it may have been at one time, to prevent any future change and growth?—The Living Church.

Speed

Can human beings travel at the rate of 1,000 miles an hour and live? The United States Army Recruiting News, in discussing this question, says that such a speed is mechanically possible, but the physiological element may make it impossible. Experiments on animals in France show that such speeds produce anemia of the brain and hence incoherency and sometimes death. A well-known aviator who won a speed record said, in describing his sensations: "I went out cold as I turned the pylons"—that is, he became insensible for the fraction of a moment. Of course he recovered almost instantly. But with a higher speed he might not recover. What that speed is has not yet been ascertained.

Most Northern Section

The most northern part of the United States proper is 100 miles in Beltrami county, Minnesota, on the northwestern shore of the Lake of the Woods. This tract is completely separated from the state of Minnesota by the lake and cannot be reached by land without traveling over Canadian territory. It came into the possession of the United States through a geographical error in the treaty of Paris signed in 1783. The original surveyors, believing that this territory was south of the forty-ninth parallel instead of north of it.

Deadly Poison

Add to the evil smell of hydrogen sulphide, a common gas, the essence of decayed eggs, the odium of being one of the most toxic of gases. It is comparable to deadly hydrogen cyanide in its rapidity of action and the concentration from which death will result. Two parts of hydrogen sulphide in 10,000 parts of air when breathed for a few days will cause death. Worker concentrations will cause poisoning, and it is found in such quantities in some industries.

Tree to Decorate

With proper attention and care, trees of small size will thrive in small patches of soil where larger trees with their spreading root systems, might languish, says the American Tree association of Washington, D. C. The effect of these formally pruned trees is dignified and decorative, and gives a fine touch of green to a sheet lined with high-class shops or handsome houses in solid rows.

Odd Superstition

An old superstition in Iceland is that every bride must invite all her friends to a dinner in her own home and every article of food must be prepared by the bride herself. If she is successful in pleasing her guests she not only receives praise for her own skill, but helps along her younger sisters, who are then assumed to be equally good at cooking, and consequently have a much better chance of getting married.

Trees in Yellowstone

Five-sixths of the area of the Yellowstone National park is forested, the trees being largely coniferous. Approximately three-fourths of the forest consist of lodge-pole pines. Other trees are white pine, Engelmann spruce, silver fir, cedar and cottonwood; the quaking aspen grows in all parts of the park, furnishing food for elk, deer and beaver.

Woman Raises Turkeys

When ill health caused Miss Margaret Mahoney of Concord, Mass., to abandon her ambition for a medical career some years ago, she took to raising turkeys as a diversion. Now she has become a big supplier of the birds, has originated several kinds of turkey foods, and has written a book for the guidance of those who aspire to raise turkeys.

Sheep Came to U. S. Early

Some of the sheep which roam the ranges today are Mayflower descendants, for Wiltshires of large size and fine wool came to Plymouth, says Nature Magazine. The Dutch brought to New York long-legged sheep with coats of coarse wool, and the Swedish settlers of New Jersey came with rams and ewes to settle in the new land.

Fuller's Earth

For ages fuller's earth was used by the weavers for absorbing the oil in woolen cloth. This ancient use has now become almost a thing of the past, other processes being used, but as a toilet powder fuller's earth is invaluable, and it is still in great demand for clearing mineral oils and in the manufacture of soap.

Silver Hoarded in India

Financial experts have long been baffled by the insatiable demand for silver that comes from India. It is assumed that the natives hoard it or convert it into jewelry. Silver literally pours into India year after year and is never sent out again in any quantity.

Meaning of Pinxit

"Pinxit" is a Latin verb and means "he painted it." Especially in the period of the Renaissance it was customary to use this word in signing a canvas just as master violin makers used the word "facebat," meaning "he made it."

Ancient Chinese City

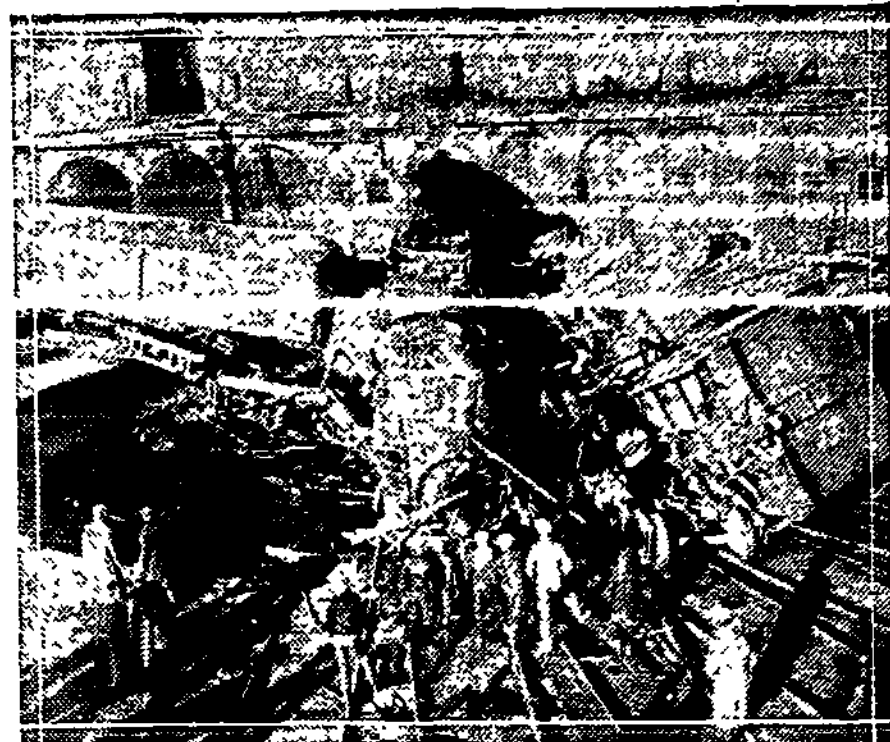

An aerial survey of the land located near the present tower of I-Chow, 60 miles from Peking, has shown that the site at one time contained a city of considerable importance antedating written history.

Gave Her Ideas

A successful English novelist, Miss Sheila Kaye-Smith, generously acknowledges that in the case of two of her stories a fellow-author supplied the basic idea. "The germ of my novels," she says, as quoted by the writer, "is generally a more or less abstract idea which has somehow got entangled with a place. For instance, 'The House of the Rising Sun'—a country back of Rye, was the germ of 'Sussex Gorse' and 'Woman Farmer'—Romney Marsh, was the germ of 'Joanna Godden.' Both these ideas were given me by W. L. George." Miss Kaye-Smith works quickly and corrects little, but it takes her eight months to complete a story.

"Bottle Books"

About a century ago "bottle books" were made in the south of France. They were used to carry liquid refreshments and were popular with judges, lawyers and the learned folk generally. The legal profession was given to carrying its authorities back and forth under the arm. Hence these bottle books which were made of lustrous, decorated dark blue faience, were in appearance not unlike toilet bottles. The contents were usually found or partly literary with a liquid component. When the owner felt the need of a nip he opened his little book.—Detroit News

Five persons were seriously injured and a score of others badly bruised when the Omaha train on the Minneapolis, St. Paul, and Omaha Railroad leaped into an open switch at St. James, Minn., hurling two locomotives into a turntable. Engineer E. Fagerman was seriously burned when he took the plunge into the pit with his locomotive; Joe Harris, fireman, leaped through the cab window and was injured internally, while H. Oakland, an hostler, was buried beneath the debris for more than three hours. The turntable was completely demolished.

LAUGHABLE

YET LAMENTABLE

It would appear that Marcus Garvey, a New York negro, is a very shrewd fellow who capitalizes the monumental ignorance of his followers, for, with his abilities as an organizer, he can hardly be the ignorant which his activities and claims would imply. He has established—on paper—the “Provisional Republic of Africa”—the vast continent of Africa which is dominated throughout by white Europeans or white men of European descent, except in the case of Liberia and Abyssinia. Liberia

European power long ago but for the belief that the United States would object because negro freedom from this country were colonized there. Abyssinia is able to take care of itself, its strength being due to the Semite descent of its dominant population; all its regions are said to be fertile, or descendants of imported slaves. Yet Marcus Garvey of New York calls himself President of the “Provisional Republic of (all) Africa.”

More than this, he has organized the “Sublime Order of the Nile” as well as the “Distinguished Order of Ethiopia,” and has called together “the fourth international convention on the negro peoples of the world,” on the announced programme of which are “the deification of Jesus as the Black Man of Sorrows,” the “canonization of the Virgin Mary as a negress,” and the “idealization of God as a ‘creature of imaginary semblance of the black race, being of like image and likeness.’” All the world—or such part of it as gets this news—will smile at such extraordinary interpretation of history and religion along negroid lines, although the right of merriment scarcely belongs to those Germans who during the World War taught the young and ignorant in their country that the Creator of the universe was a German God. But it is hardly a matter for laughter, even though it be the kind of fraud of which the courts may not take cognizance. There ought to be some means of checking this preposterous Garvey person, if only to save the pennies of his deluded followers.

“SOLVING COOLIDGE”

William Hard’s “Solving Coolidge,” though provoking more or less favorable comment, can hardly be accepted as a welcome or pleasing solution either by the President or his friends, for it leaves the impression that Mr. Coolidge, though a worthy man, is limited in his capacity for usefulness shows the President as prompt as an administrator, but in the matter of statesmanlike decision as moving “like a snail,” even like a crab, “sidewise and backwards as well as some how forwards.” A Vermontier is quoted as saying that “it takes Calvin all summer to yell.” The long delayed transformation, however, says Mr. Hard, is not a jelly but into a rock. He is not slow to act when his mind is made up; his great difficulty is in reaching a decision as to what to do. His avoidance of direct answers, his long silences “must be regarded not as perversity, but as a necessity,” the President’s peculiarities are explained by this writer on the ground that he is a “throwback” to the time when:

“The ancient (New England) or Coolidge American sat on a cracker barrel in a store. He whittled. He had all the time in the world. He chewed tobacco gravely and judiciously. He could say nothing for hours. He broke his silence only to relate a fact or to hurl the shaft of a joke. If he (Mr. Coolidge) can not think of a fact or can not think of a joke he seems to see little reason for language.”

Strong Bank-Note Paper

The secret of making the linen tissue for Bank of England notes has been kept for 200 years by the trusted employees of one firm. Of a peculiar whiteness, the paper is so tough that a folded note can sustain the weight of 50 pounds without tearing. In the days before postal orders became common, it was customary, when sending money by mail, to cut a note in halves, inclose the first with the invoice and await acknowledgment before parting with the second.—Popular Mechanics.

Origin of White Feather

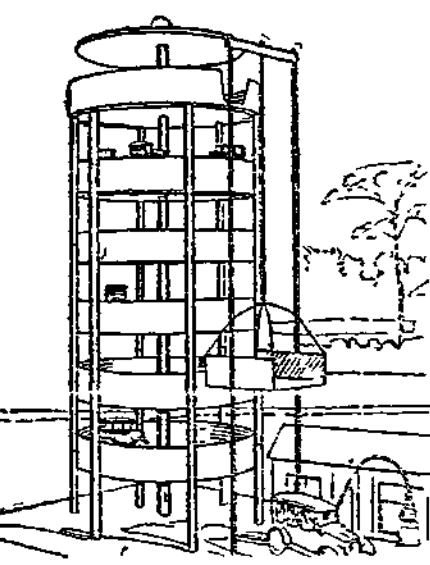

The phrase “showing the white feather” is derived from the cockpit. It arose, says one authority, from the belief of certain patrons of the cock-pit that birds having a white feather in their wings were apt to show cowardice in fight. Many such phrases are incorporated in the English language from the same source, such as “to turn tail,” “to stand steel,” “cock of the walk,” “to die game”—to enlist some other of the 50 or 60 such words.

Tower of Revolving Floors for Parking Automobiles

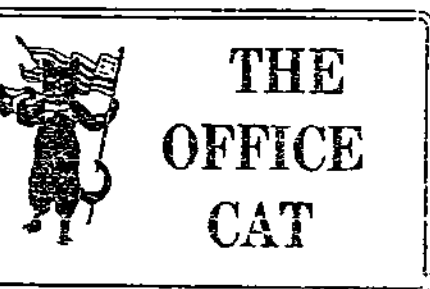

As a solution to the automobile parking problem, an Ohio inventor offers a circular steel garage “tower,” consisting of a number of revolving stories arranged one above the other, each affording space for several cars, which are to be raised to position by an outside elevator. He estimates that a structure of this type with twenty floors, thirty-six feet in diameter, would hold two hundred automobiles and might provide additional facilities for radio stations, an observation or amusement center, or possibly a landing place for aircraft or an anchor post for dirigibles.

Porous Bronze Bearings Help Prolong Life of Auto

Absorbing oils and greases up to 25 percent of its volume, a copper-tin bronze automobile bearing recently developed is expected to simplify the problems of lubrication and to aid in prolonging a car's life. Under a test, it was found of service in all ordinary uses and in many cases satisfactory for replacing ball and roller types. Thousands of tiny pores give the metal the qualities of a blotter or wick. In a demonstration, a kerosene lamp was fitted with a bushing of this material, instead of a cotton wick, and burned as long as the liquid lasted.

Now let's all rise and sing the touching little ballad entitled, “The stormy ocean brings up more than memories of full meals to me.”

There is reason to believe that Mr. Coolidge sometimes sighs for the good old days when he was just a plain, obscure, unworldly vice-president, with nothing to do but keep out of the public's way.

Mystery of Arctic Barrier Baffles Radio Experts

Since July, 1922, when the Albatross, Amundsen's exploration ship, made its dash northward and became frozen in the ice in latitude 78° north, longitude 165° west, the ship's radio has been sending out two messages a day. Those messages have been received by nearly all stations in Europe, across the North Pole, but they have not been received in Alaska, the United States or Canada.

MacMillan's ship, the Bowdoin, now frozen in at Refuge Harbor, latitude 78.30 north, longitude 72.30 west, has found that the only station with which it can communicate regularly is that of Jack Barnsley, station 9BP, of Prince Rupert, B. C. and since Sept. 7, 1923, all press stories from the Bowdoin and all messages to and from it have been handled through Barnsley. Other stations have heard WNP (the Bowdoin) but all report very unsatisfactory reception, and 9BP is the only one to get messages through to WNP.

Why is this? That is the question radio experts are asking. What mysterious, invisible barrier prevents these messages from reaching this country? Is it the influence of the aurora borealis or the magnetic pole that causes a great spot surrounding the pole on this hemisphere? These questions the Aerial League of America has set itself to solve, and the co-operation of all radio amateurs is invited in the tests. Prizes will be offered by the league for the best reports of experiments by amateurs.

The object of the research work is, first, to determine the cause of the light, twilight, and darkness, ice, water, snow, volcanic disturbances, conditions and geological formations on radio. Second, to ascertain and define the location and strength of natural disturbances and interferences acting upon receiving stations all over the world, under various conditions. Third, to locate and map the “dead areas” of the earth, and deliver into the causes of the mysterious barriers to radio transmission. Fourth, to find out whether radio signals travel equally rapidly through earth, air, and water. The results of the work should be very valuable.

Schools in Scotland

Elementary schools in Scotland are the property of the local authorities. Prior to that, however, education in Scotland was the property of the church. As early as 1773, an act was passed for setting schools apart for the maintenance of a school for every parish in Scotland.

Possibly a great deal of work is done that doesn't need to be because there is nothing else to do.

No Use for It

A man never borrows the scales of justice for the purpose of weighing the shortcomings of his neighbor.

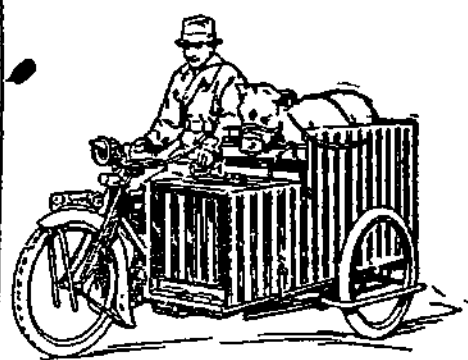

COOLIDGE MADE MEMBER OF ANCIENT MILITARY COMPANY

President Coolidge was unanimously elected an Honorary Member of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company of Massachusetts, of which he was Commander-in-Chief when Governor of the Bay State. The President is second Chief Executive to be so honored, President Monroe having been the first. The company was founded 280 years ago in Boston, Mass. Photo shows Willis W. Stover, Colonel in the company, pinning on the Honorary Medal.

Motor Cycle Is Cattle Cart for Trips to Market

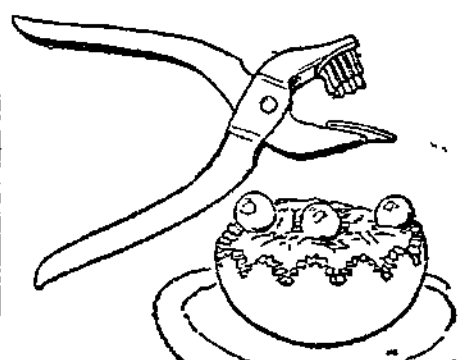

To haul live stock to market, a farmer in England built a roomy crate on the frame of a motorcycle sidecar. The pen which is of strong wood, accommodates a large animal and has a compartment for egg boxes and other produce. A gate at the rear serves as an entrance and a halter tied to the slats holds the animal steady while the machine is in motion.

Fruit Canner Like Pliers Stamps Out Designs

Scalloped edges are placed on grape fruit and orange halves for preparing “finger” salads and other dishes with the aid of a punner-stamped device. It has cutting blades shaped to stamp out a design with the precision of a die, and the leverage afforded by the spring handles makes the task easy. Fruit skins can be cut into basket handles and other fancy patterns that only a skilled person could achieve with an ordinary knife. It is made of durable metal, milled plated, and the blades are strongly riveted to the handles.

Invisible Tow-Line

In automobile racing there is an invisible tow-line. This so-called tow-line is only on the board tracks in spots or better than 10 miles an hour. It is the suction of the machine in front caused as it travels through space and can be likened very much to an inverted funnel. If the car back of it can keep within the space which would be equivalent to the spout of the funnel it is towed along at the same rate or speed as the car which is creating this vacuum. This method of riding is used quite often by the slower cars. Its disadvantage is that the motor racing up such a tow has no means of coming and the motor is inclined to overheat very quickly.

Missing Persons Reappear

The Missing of Charles Ross many years ago constituted for a time a “celebrated case.” The disappearance of Dorothy Arnold formed another. But it seems, according to a report of the National Association of Travelers' Aid Societies, that hundreds of similar cases occur every year. No fewer than 900 women and 2,000 men disappeared in the United States last year. What tragedy swayed them on, whether they are being or dead, is not known to officials, but the friends of the many thousands of men women and children who annually disappear, however, it is going to find that about 92 per cent are finally found alive.

Wouldn't Ride Free

President James Buchanan insisted on paying his fare at all times when he traveled, never receiving a pass, even though he was out of office. He would have been horrified at the idea of traveling free when he was president. Friends often heard him say: “I will pay my way while I can afford it. When I cannot afford to pay, I will stay at home.”—From Linkings.

Horses From Spain

Horses were not known to the Indians prior to the advent of the white man in America. The first horse seen by the mainland Indians were those of the Spanish invaders of Mexico. A few years later De Soto brought the horse into Florida and westward to the Mississippi, while Coronado, in 1541, introduced it to the Indians of the Great Plains.

made to meet the demands of modern canning methods

TESTED jar rubbers! Think what that means—no more bulging rubbers, no blowing out, no drying up. In place of the old uncertainty and anxiety, you have security against loss!

Stretch and "set" are the two things a jar rubber must do if you are to have an air-tight seal. It must stretch just enough to slip easily over the neck of the jar. If it has too much stretch it will not snap back to its original size. Once in place it must "set" grip firmly the neck of the jar and make an air-tight seal.

"U. S." Jar Rubbers come to you thoroughly tested for stretch and "set." They are made by the United States Rubber Company—largest rubber organization in the world—from high-grade rubber grown on the company's own plantations in Sumatra.

Before they leave the factory "U. S." Jar Rubbers are tested for all those qualities which enable them to meet every demand of modern canning.

Ask your dealer for "U. S." Jar Rubbers.

IMPORTANT NOTES ON CANNING

Cook hard fruits, such as hard pears, under-ripe peaches, pineapples, sweet apples, quinces, water-melon-rind or citron, in a small amount of water, or steam them until tender before placing them in a heavy strap. If these fruits are not treated in this way, the preserve will be hard and tough instead of plump and tender.

Pack the fruit firmly in clean, tested jars to within one-half inch of the top. Pack wired, strained or cored fruits with the cavities toward the center of the jar. Fill the jars with boiling sirup or hot water.

From The New Butterick Cook Book

Cherries that are not desirable for canning may make good juice for use as a beverage or in pudding sauces and gelatin desserts.

Mastodon and Mammoth

The mammoth was an elephant, now extinct, related to and nearly the same size as the existing Indian elephant. It, however, had a long, thick, hairy coat and very long, upward-curving tusks. The mastodon is any of the numerous species of extinct elephants, which differ from the mammoth chiefly in the molar teeth, which have high conical cusps or parallel ridges with little or no cement in the interspaces. Some have small tusks in the lower jaw besides those in the upper jaw.

Electricity Part of Diet

Physiologists have come forward with the announcement that everyone eats a little electricity all the while. The cells of which the muscles of almost all animals are composed are veritable electric batteries and this is true to a degree of vegetables. Thus electricity in a very general way is held by scientists to be a part of everyone's diet. Some maintain that food which is not electrically active has little or no nourishment.

Origin of Sheep

Sheep are somewhat of a puzzle to naturalists. What race brought them from their wild roamings to serve man is not known. Perhaps they were the first of the animals to be domesticated. The wild sheep of today have much hair and scant wool. There are more than 200 different kinds of domestic sheep and the wool buyer knows more than 600 grades of wool.—Nature

The Hittites

That the Hittites were in constant communication with other nations is shown by the fact that Egyptian scarabs and naulets, Phoenician pottery and Greek terra cotta figures are found in the tombs of different periods. Bronze daggers and jewelry are fairly common and a safety pin, 3,000 years old, that would still work, is said to have been found.
